DEATH PENALTY
ASKED IN NEFF
MURDER TRIAL

Verdict of Guilty Sought
By Prosecution Against Canfield Man

UNHAPPY MARRIED
LIFE, SAID MOTIVE

"Cool, Cold-Blooded", Is
Description Applied To Defendant

(By Associated Press)
YOUNGSTOWN, April 20.—
Painting a picture of domestic unhappiness as a motive, Prosecutor J. H. Leighninger today asked the jury of six men and six women trying Cyrus H. Neff on a charge of first degree murder to return a verdict of guilty.

Leighninger described Neff as a "cool, cold-blooded" man, who "thought more of making money than he thought of his wife" whom he is charged with having murdered at his Canfield home last October.
Leighninger stressed the fact that Neff had settled $50,000 on his first wife, and said this was "constantly in his mind" when alleged marital difficulties arose with his second wife.

Arguments are expected to be completed this afternoon, and it is likely that Judge George H. Gess-ner will give his charge tomorrow, when the case will go to the jury.

Introduce Exhibits
A formal motion of the defense to have the case taken from the jury and dismissed by Judge Gessner was overruled by the judge without arguments after the jury was dismissed for the day.

The three gruesome pictures taken at the post mortem of the head of Mrs. Neff, two pictures showing the effects of shots fired into his head, Mrs. Neff's record, the Florida divorce petition and testimony of Mary Neff Reebie were admitted as exhibits over the protests of the defense.

The prosecution offered several other pieces of evidence, to which the defense did not object. The introduction as evidence of the so-called "sister" gun by the defense was not objected to by the state.

In a parade of rebuttal witnesses yesterday, the prosecutors tried to show that Neff's wife had been "depressed" for 18 months prior to her death, and also sought to support his contention that the fatal shot was fired from much farther than the one-foot range which is the defense contention.

Stocks Run Wild
On New York Mart

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, April 20.—
The government announcement that the United States had cut loose from the gold standard produced an explosion of buying in speculative markets today.
Stocks surged up 1 to more than 9 points in the most active trading in nearly three years, while sensitive commodities generally surged up anew, and the dollar again dropped in foreign exchange trading.
Markets cooled off somewhat after midday, however, and nearly half the advance in shares was lost in profit taking.

Bulky Comments
On Dollar Status

WASHINGTON, April 20.—
A hope that the gold content of the dollar would be reduced was expressed by Senator Bulky of Ohio in commenting on the nation's temporary suspension of gold exchanges.
He said that in his opinion "the burden of indebtedness—public and private—is such that it can never be paid without some readjustment."

the county, Hughes, a representative nounced. Just how enlistments will

Envoys of 'Unofficial' Enemies to Meet at Washington Parleys

T. V. Soong, American-Educated Finance Minister, Will Represent China. Viscount Ishii, Former Nipponese
Ambassador to United States, Japan's Delegate.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Although the purpose of the forthcoming conferences at Washington to which President Roosevelt has invited the nations of the earth, is to attempt to chart a course that will take the world out of the quagmire of depression, it is within the bounds of possibility that the Far Eastern question will be injected into the proceedings by either of the two delegates who represent Japan and China. In such an event, the President will have ample opportunity to display his powers as a peacemaker and a diplomat.

Representing Japan will be Viscount Ishii, formerly his country's Ambassador to the United States. He is 67, a veteran statesman, who has served as his country's Minister of Foreign Affairs and is now a Privy Councillor. Ishii is best known in the United States as the negotiator of the Lansing-Ishii agreement of 1917, under which the United States conceded that Japan has "special interests" in China.
China's delegate to the parleys, T. V. Soong, although Minister of Finance in the Nanking Government, is practically inexperienced in diplomacy. Soong was educated at Harvard University and later attended a post graduate course at Columbia. Soong feels very strongly about what he considers the injustice put upon his country by Japan, and one can readily imagine the fireworks that may ensue if the Manchurian question is allowed to inject itself into the economic parleys.

"Best Sheriff in America"—
Title Given to Dan Hardie

Sheriff Dan Hardie and Family

Ask any Dade county, Fla., resident who the best sheriff in America is and without hesitation the reply will be Dan Hardie, brother of Mrs. John Smeltz, East Sixth st., Salem.

Sheriff Hardie aided in the arrest of Giuseppe Zangara killer of Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago, and was charged with his custody until the assassin was ultimately sent to eternity. But that was just one incident in the life of the 54-year-old officer whose career stacks up as favorably as that of any of the picturesque sheriffs of the old days when the decalog of law and order was carried in the cylinder of a six-gun.

Born in St. Louis
Hardie, "the best sheriff in America," according to citizens of Dade County, was born in St. Louis, Mo., and raised there until his thirteenth year, when he was bitten by the wander bug. At some time or another he has been in every corner of North America, but never for long. He sailed the seven seas before the mast and aided the Boers in the South African War against the mother country. All of this he

THREE-POINT PLAN
TO BE UNDERTAKEN;
CONGRESS WILL ACT

(By Associated Press)
The first official departure of the United States from the gold standard in more than fifty years was felt today throughout the world.

LONDON—Britain's reaction was puzzlement and extreme anxiety.
The dollar value dropped heavily—at one time it was $3.90 to the pound.
The British government rejected the theory that the United States took the step to provide itself with a bludgeon for the MacDonald-Roosevelt negotiations.

PARIS—Stocks jumped upward and the dollar closed on the Bourse at 22.46 francs, the lowest in more than seven years.

BERLIN—A high financial authority said that in the long run present fluctuations could not touch the dollar value, for the United States is the world's creditor. The dollar dropped.

ROME—Large groups of American tourists called at banks and travel agencies seeking advice. The dollar dropped.

VIENNA—American travelers got 10 per cent less for their dollars than they did a few days ago.

President Given Full Power To Act In Gold Situation

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 20.—
A three-point measure giving President Roosevelt complete authority to start the United States, now off the gold standard, on a policy of controlled inflation was whipped into shape today with the chief executive's approval.

Quick Action In Prospect
The legislation was outlined in general form at a white house conference last night and Senator Thomas (D., Okla.), the sponsor, probably will introduce it today as an amendment to the administration's farm bill pending in the senate. Thus quick action was in prospect.

The broad grant of authority proposed in the Thomas bill would give the President power to undertake inflation by any one of these methods:

Issuance of new currency; acceptance of silver in payment for war debts; decrease the gold content of the dollar by international agreement or otherwise.

Armed with this power the President is confident of carrying on within reasonable limits the inflationary process begun yesterday in

STEEL BUSINESS
BETTER IN OHIO

Definite Mark of Recovery Reported For Metal Trades

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, April 20.—A "definite mark of business recovery in steel and general industry" was seen today by W. S. Dosey, editor of Daily Metal Trade, in an 85 per cent improvement in the steel production rate over mid-March, the low point of the year.

Many mills, he said, have the largest backlog of orders they have enjoyed for at least a year.

"For the first time in four years," Dosey said "the nation's steel making operations today exceed the rate prevailing on the corresponding date of any immediately preceding year."

Twenty-four per cent of the present steel making capacity, he said, is engaged to care for current business. This is about 1 per cent more than a year ago, and "an 85 per cent improvement over the production rate of mid-March, the low point of this year."

On the basis of current reports from steel making centers, he predicted a "continued influx of orders which presage higher production rates next week." It is especially significant, he said, that the increased demand for steel does not come from a few large orders but represents a "healthy expansion of requirements in virtually all consuming markets."

One candidate was obligated in the third and fourth degrees.

Ask Quick Action
In Phone Hearing

CLEVELAND, April 20.—Ralph
Eide, president of the Ohio Bell Telephone company, recommended that a decision on the company's rate case be expedited by evaluation of its property as a whole.
Evaluation of the property devoted to exchanges, he said, would result in a large expense to both the company and municipalities and would cause further delay in reaching a decision. The rate case has been before the state utilities commission for 12 years.

INDEFINITELY POSTPONED

As a measure of retaliation against prosecution of its subjects by Russia, which charged six of them with sabotage and espionage, Great Britain has laid an embargo on Russian goods. It does not seem to matter that the men who did not admit their guilt were set free and that only those who confessed their crimes were sentenced to prison. Apparently, Great Britain is laboring that point of honor which demands the life of a nation, if necessary, for the comfort of any part of the nation.

The interest of the United States in the matter is realistic and acute. It happened that the British-Russian affair began to reach a climax at about the time there were strong rumors of Russian recognition on Washington's part. It was believed that President Roosevelt intended to take the step which has been recommended for so many years. For the first time since the war it was possible to mention the possibility of establishing diplomatic relations with Russia without arousing anything more serious than formal protests from patriotic societies.

But Great Britain is an old friend of the United States—and apparently a very good friend. Obviously, while His Majesty's government was having a spat with the Soviet States, the United States could be finding smarter things to do than making any overt gestures of friendship to Russian gentlemen in high places. Since it is probable that strained relationship between the British and the Russians are going to continue indefinitely, American recognition of Russia will have to be checked off the list of things that should be and can be in the near future.

America will go on as before, doing a tidy little business in Russian trade with its left hand, threatening the Soviet government with the fist of its right hand and keeping its eyes shut tight lest it realize the humorous awkwardness of its almost impossible position. Great Britain chose a most unpropitious moment for its squabble with the head men of Moscow.

Twenty Years Ago

(Issue of April 20, 1913)

Saturday was the 12th anniversary of the big snow of April 19, 1901, when residents of this section of the state awoke from their slumbers to find that from one to three feet of snow had fallen during the night. About five years ago a heavy snow fell on May 3, but lasted only a few hours.

Plymouth, England—Militant suffragettes this morning attempted to blow up the famous Smeaton tower at Plymouth. The bomb failed to explode.

At a meeting of the Salem Matinee club Friday evening, the final draft of the lease of the driving park from the Park Land company was presented and signed, and all is now in readiness for the beginning of work on the track and stables Monday, if the weather permits.

Mrs. Elizabeth Zimmerman, 86, Lisbon, was stricken with paralysis at her home early Saturday morning.

Twenty-one applications for membership were balloted on at a meeting of the Rebekah lodge Friday evening.

A class of 20 candidates was initiated at a meeting of Goshen Grange Friday evening.

The membership of Greenford Grange is increasing. Twenty-two new members were added recently.

Funeral service for Mrs. Eva Bush, Goshen, who died Tuesday evening, was held Friday afternoon at the home.

New York

Day
by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE.

NEW YORK, April 20—There are rarely more than a handful of diners at Moneta's, nestled in the tumble of Mulberry street. Yet it remains about the only haven devoted to eating as a leisurely art. Paul Morand and Julian Street glorified it in their volumes on American cuisine.

Clare Briggs introduced me to the fragrant minestrone there away back in the days when Lillian Lorraine floated over audiences in a swing of roses on the New York Roof. It had the well-polished charm of an old English inn parlor behind red curtains. I never forgot it.

Nearly every restaurant of that type—Mouquin's, Gonfaron's, Busatanby and such—vanished. The two exceptions are the Lafayette and Brevoort. So recently I heard Moneta's had ridden the storm and went back. Nothing had changed. Papa Moneta, a little grayer, still hovered solicitously over each table. It is true the gilt "Gaudemur Igitur Juvenum Dum Sumus" stretching across the wall had been re-touched and the drowsy orange cat that napped in the entrance was eight liters removed. But Moneta's was still Moneta's. And even that is a pale and mumbling tribute.

After leaving Moneta's near midnight, we strolled through shadowy Minetta Lane. The scarred shack of a locksmith announced the proprietor as Swerlo Oof. And if that doesn't suggest a swing from the ankle to a fat man's paunch you think up one. I'm too full of spaghetti anyway.

Incidentally, the first restaurateur in the Forties to respond to the beer news was Jack Kennedy, known to an older Broadway as co-owner of Jim and Jack's and later, conducting his own chop house under his name. Forty-eight hours after the bill passed he had revamped his caravansary into a German beer garden with frauleins in costume serving what passed for beer until the real stuff was on tap. He showed an artistic touch by putting sawdust on the floor.

Jack Kennedy is a chunky, genial Irishman, mottled with freckles and given to zebra striped shirts, many suits in the latest cut and a sizeable diamond ring. In older days I was attracted to him by his singular devotion to his mother. She was a jet-bonneted little old lady with an engaging brogue. Kennedy came out of the ruff-cut of Tenth ave. and each evening his mother came to old Jim and Jack's patronized by the stage sporting world and such, to dine with him. As his bank roll ballooned he provided a magnificent home on West End ave. for his "Mom." It was outfitted luxuriously and she was taken there as a surprise. She remained two weeks and returned to Tenth. "You can be the dude of the family," she explained. "I want to live among my neighbors." And there she passed away.

Thingumabobs: Sproule Braden, copper magnate, has a magic room in his Riverside home. . . . Robert Henri, famous painter, regards T. E. Powers, cartoonist, as one of America's greatest artists. . . . Helen Keller's Paris hotel is the Lancaster, which she knows as well as her Paris home. . . . Mattie Belle Johnston once bought a trained mongoose for a dollar in Sumatra. . . . But they cannot be brought into the U. S. So it is now the pet of a Pacific liner captain. . . . Earl Carroll recently gave his yacht to the crew. . . . A pert chorus klap on 47th st.: "So that's his new flame. She looks like Trotsky's sweetheart to me."

"Mr. and Mrs. the Joe and Vi Sunday supplement feature originated by Clare Briggs and now syndicated without authorship line, is written by Arthur Polwell, an art editor, and fabricated by staff artists."

An old companion in cut-uppery writes he is coming to town shortly and envisions over a night out, hailing it as a sort of final fling. I had to wire him today and dash cold water on his fervor. I have only one wild old left. And instead of sowing it I have thought it would be rather dandy to feed to Dean Palmer's ailing canary upstairs.

Keeping Fit Means Healthy Life

Recently I attended a dinner given in the honor of a physician who had devoted 50 years of his life to the practice and teaching of medicine. For 25 years he practiced medicine in the city of New York and for the remaining quarter of a century he taught at one of the leading medical schools of the country. Many of his colleagues and former students attended the dinner.

He was deeply moved by the fine reception given him but nevertheless he did not overlook the opportunity to scold a little and even to criticize his medical friends. "You give advice, guide others, save many from pitfalls and serious ailments, but neglect your own health and life."

Heed Nature's Warnings
This learned man said that though the average expectation of life had doubled since he became a doctor, too many persons still overlook simple rules of hygiene so essential to good health. He stressed the importance of preventive medicine and recalled that in his youth little, if any, attention was given to the prevention of disease.

Nature has a way of sending out warnings when anything is wrong with our bodies. And what is more, she often provides marvelous ways of attempting to correct faults in this intricate mechanism called the body. But too often we neglect these signs.

Headache, nausea, "biliousness", lack of appetite, burning pain after meals, nervousness, loss of weight and insomnia are a few signs that should never be neglected. Every day we read in the newspaper of the sudden death of a notable. He may have had persistent heartburn which the sufferer neglected and attributed to faulty eating. In reality, the victim had heart disease, but never found time to visit a doctor who could have helped him.

Learn To Keep Fit

It is only with good health and vigor that we can expect lengthy, happy and useful lives. How much better it is to learn how to keep fit than it is to be obliged to patch up the body after some disease has attacked it. I am confident that so much attention has been given to the subject of vitamins, "irradiated foods" and other modern discoveries, that too little thought is given to the importance of repeated physical examinations and visits to the doctor.

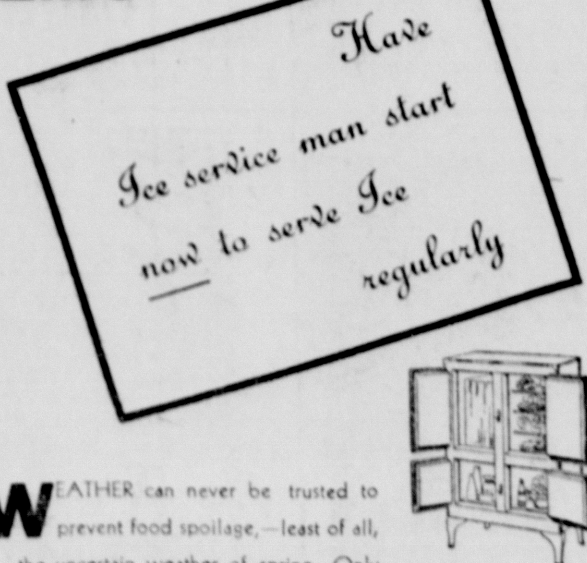

I am afraid that in this age of specialization the simple rules of hygiene are overlooked. No one will deny that vaccination against smallpox and scarlet fever, the prevention of typhoid fever and the increased knowledge of other communicable diseases, have made this world a safer place in which to live. But it cannot be overlooked that the so-called degenerative diseases of middle life continue to take a heavy toll.

The authorities all agree that the prevention as well as the cure of disease lies in simple hygienic living. Bear in mind that plenty of fresh air, sunlight, moderate exercise, abundant rest and sleep, daily elimination, simple and nourishing

The Stars Say:

For Friday, April 21

The celestial influences bearing rule upon the affairs of this day seem to direct the energies and interests to the realm of the social, artistic, domestic and affectional rather than to the more sordid activities of life. It is possible that romance and its affiliated side-issues may occupy the attentions, inciting to pleasure, courtship, possibly marriage and lending a cast of the sudden, surprising or even sensational.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year in which the domestic, social, or romantic affiliations may engage the major attention, with the prospect of very happy and flourishing conditions in such connection. A child born on this day may be artistic, cultured, gracious, kindly and strong in its attachments and home life.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a more movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up, your stomach hurts. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE

by WARWICK DEEPIING

SYNOPSIS
Dr. John Wolfe, old Dr. Montague Threadgold's assistant, is stunned at the unsanitary conditions he finds in the snug little town of Navestock. Wolfe realizes his greatest fight in ridding the town of pollution will be in overcoming the resentful attitude of the people themselves who seem perfectly satisfied with their mode of living. He encounters his first obstacle in the person of Jasper Turrell, the brewer, who objects to Wolfe taking a sample of his well water for analysis. Undaunted by opposition, Wolfe continues his researches and prepares a map of the town's unsanitary areas. The one bright spot in Navestock is the home of Mrs. Mary Mascall where Wolfe is always sure of a welcome. He is exceptionally fond of Mrs. Mascall's young daughter, Jess. Wolfe is summoned to the home of elderly Miss Perfrement, who feigns heart attacks to attract attention. She is annoyed when Wolfe does not honor her and tells her there is no cause for alarm. Later, Dr. Threadgold insists that Wolfe be more tactful. The blundering old man cautions Wolfe against using so much "expensive" medicines when the "ordinary" preparations will do.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

Wolfe had the curiosity to look at Miss Perfrement's record in the day-book and account ledger. He found a great number of entries. They occurred with valuable regularity, like the entry "Dined out" in the diary of a precise old bachelor.

Miss Perfrement.
Attendance.
Miss Antipas. VIII.
Miss Perfrement's maid.
Advice.
Pil. Cal. Sac. Haust. Mag. Sulph.
Miss Perfrement's dog.
Advice.
Unquent. Sulph.
Miss Perfrement.

At.
Miss Aqua Sac. VIII.
Such were these entries, and Wolfe smiled over them—placebos, sugared waters and sulphur for the lady's pug. The account ledger showed that Dr. Threadgold's exchequer profited heavily by Miss Perfrement's "heart." She was a valuable patient, and worth humoring Wolfe closed the ledger with a slam.

Wolfe had many things to worry him when he made his way to George Lane on the afternoon of the day of his visit to Miss Perfrement. George Lane ran close to Turrell's brewery and at the back of the lane were the brewery stables, where the great, black dray horses had their quarters. Piled against the low brick wall that closed the back yards of George Lane lay the refuse from Turrell's stables. It was allowed to accumulate there for months at a time.

As Purge the cobbler said to Wolfe:

"It's treating us like pigs, sir. You can't get away from the smell—nowhere. It's in your food; it goes to bed with you, and you get up with it in the morning."

Wolfe had suggested an appeal to Mr. Turrell.

"Speak to him! What's the use, sir! Ain't he our tenants?"

"Well he ought to clear it out."

"Clear me out first, sir. Turrell won't put up with a grumbler."

It happened that Wolfe walked straight into Jasper Turrell at the corner of Malt Lane. The battle of Virginia's Court had been fought a week ago, but Wolfe stopped and noded his man.

"Mr. Turrell, may I have a word with you?"

"Twenty, sir, if you want to apologize."

"It's about that stable-yard of yours at the back of George Lane."

"Yes, is it?"

"I don't suppose, sir you know the conditions there?"

Turrell drew in a breath, and his cheeks showed hollows.

"Look here, sir, what do you mean?"

"I mean, sir, that that yard of yours—"

"Upon my word, it is absolutely preposterous—a young fellow coming into a town like this, and trying to teach all of us our business."

Dr. Threadgold is the responsible person here. Remember that, sir, and take yourself a little less seriously."

His eyes threatened Wolfe, and Wolfe looked at him curiously.

"It is to your interest, sir, as much as to anybody else's."

"Oh is it? Well, you leave it at that. See?"

Wolfe was in a mood of deep disgust as he rode out towards Herongate to pay a last visit to the shepherd who had been ill in his cottage on Tarling Moor. Certain things that had happened in Navestock during the week had made Wolfe ask himself what was the use of attempting to better the state of such a town. Some of the people whom he had tried to help had turned and snapped at him. He had contrived to make himself more hated because of his frankness in dealing with facts.

There was the case of Mrs. Lucy Gollop, who took in babies to nurse at twopence a day. Wolfe was called to her cottage to find five infants half-dead from overdoses of opium. Mrs. Gollop was in tears.

"Oh, dear, doctor, I can't think what's come to the poor little souls. They won't wake up, sir, they won't wake up."

"What have you been dosing them with?"

"They were so fretful-like, and the neighbours be that nasty. The poor dears do scream—"

Wolfe looked grimly at the clay-faced, blue-lipped infants, each lying in a deal box stuffed with rags that served as a cradle.

"Show me the bottle."

"The overflowing creature snivelled about the room."

"Ere 'tis, Palfrey's cordial."

"I thought as much. Where did you get that?"

"At Mr. Hubbard's, doctor."

"I see."

Then had followed ministrations upon the part of Wolfe to the narrow, coiled infants in the deal boxes, a process that had entailed energetic rescue work in the mixed atmosphere of Mrs. Gollop's cottage. A neighbour had been sent running to Burrell's the chemist's, in High Street. Wolfe, minus coat and waistcoat had put a foot through a rotten board in the floor and discovered other rottenness to disgust him. Later had come the adjournment to Mr. Hubbard's general shop, and the asking of direct and pertinent questions.

Mr. Hubbard was a good little man with a religion and no morals. He had one of those big, round, hairless faces, mild as a full moon, and very solemn. He blundered along cheerfully in the path that his predecessors had followed, selling groceries, hardware, clothing, and drugs. The cheerful innocence with which he handled these things was characteristic of the man and his surroundings. That bottles containing tinctures of nuxvomica and senna stood next to each other in a dark corner gave him no qualms of alarm. He kept kegs of plaster of Paris and white arsenic next to each other in his store-room. Old women stood under bladders of lard, bundles of brushes, and hanging clusters of pails and coal-scuttles, and bought packets of Glaubersalts and rhubarb powder, and bottles with gaudy labels that contained—Heaven knows what.

Wolfe had shown Mr. Hubbard the bottle of cordial and Mr. Hubbard had blinked at him across the counter. His white apron cut his white waistcoat in two, and above the dividing line protruded pencils, a cheese-scoop, an order book, and a red-leather spectacle case.

"I suppose you sell a good deal of this?"

"We do, s.r., we do. It is very popular."

"Do you know what it contains?"

Mr. Hubbard had asserted that it was not his business to know such things.

Wolfe had enlightened him.

"Treacle, infusion of sassafras, and opium."

Furthermore, Wolfe had made certain statements that had left pink wrath upon Mr. Hubbard's face. Perhaps Wolfe was unfortunate in his methods of expression, but elderly men in Mr. Hubbard's position do not care to be told that they cannot escape responsibility by pretending to be ignorant.

Later in the day Mr. Hubbard had toddled up to Prospect House, a respectable citizen, with a still more respectable grievance.

"To be spoken to, sir like that, sir, in my own shop, sir! I'm not an analytical chemist, sir, but I am a conscientious man, sir, and I've been here thirty years."

Dr. Threadgold and Mr. Hubbard had mingled sympathy and indignation. Nor would Wolfe have felt out Threadgold's scolding so much had not the woman Gollop arrived that evening and accused Wolfe of hinting "that she had poisoned the poor babes." There had been a further scene with Threadgold, and Wolfe had gone to his bedroom in great disgust.

The committee which arranged the party was comprised of Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Charles Cornwall, Mrs. James Hayden and Miss LaVaughn Simpson.

There numbers composed the program: Piano duet, Mrs. E. E. Dyball and Mrs. H. E. Silver, trombone solo, Mrs. John Swinbank with Miss LaVaughn Simpson at the piano, vocal solos, Mrs. Richard Fitzpatrick, accompanied by Mrs. Elmer Coyle; piano solo, Mrs. Paul Beaver; violin solo, Harry Heitzel. Mr. Heitzel also played a violin obligato for one of Mrs. Fitzpatrick's solos.

After the program, cards, jig saw puzzles and anagrams provided entertainment. Tea was served after the games.

To stimulate interest in musical composition, the club, always active in promotion of good music, some weeks ago offered three prizes for original compositions. These will be awarded during National Music week, May 7 to 12.

Proceeds from the tea will be used for prize money.

NERVOUS WOMEN
Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I am so nervous it seems as though I should fly." "My nerves are all on edge." "I wish I were dead." "How often have we heard these expressions from some woman who has become so tired and run-down that her nerves can no longer stand the strain."

No woman should allow herself to drift into this condition if she can help herself. She should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. For nearly sixty years women have taken this wonderful tonic to give them renewed strength and vigor.

Get out of every bad woman who report to us that they are benefited by this medicine. Buy a bottle from your druggist today... and watch the results.

Manufacturers Ask Delay In Tax Plan

COLUMBUS, April 20.—Formulation of a tax program would be deferred until next fall under a plan favored by the Ohio Manufacturers Association.

The association, in letters to Gov. White and leaders of the legislature, recommended that the present session dispose only of emergency tax legislation, leaving the general program for consideration at a special session in September or October.

Meanwhile, the manufacturers expressed the belief the normal functions of government might "be made to operate on the income available from existing sources of taxation." Pointing out that revenue for school operations would not be needed during the summer, the letter said the intervening months would permit a "far better appraisal of the actual needs" than could be made at this time.

FLORIDANS LAUD SHERIFF HARDIE

regarded as just youthful pranks. In all his wanderings, Dan was over on the lookout for the ideal spot to settle down, and he found it by accident.

Hardie arrived in Florida when the sunny state was something of a last outpost of civilization. He had stopped in Jacksonville in hopes of picking up a ship for Africa, but after a look at the surrounding country, he decided that the Dark Continent could not be any wilder than this part of America, so he stayed around for a while.

The Spanish-American War found Hardie in the last Texas Infantry, with which he served seven months in Cuba. At the conclusion of hostilities, he shipped on a boat that traded through the West Indies, but, wearying of the sea, Hardie secured a little shore in which he sailed for Florida, landing at Miami on the spot where his home now stands.

In the southern district the agents seized a truck with 200 gallons of alcohol and confiscated 1,140 more gallons in raids on farm buildings. BIG NEWS FOR U. S.
WALL STREET EXCITED

By Arthur Brisbane
(Copyright, 1933 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

BIG NEWS. For the time, Uncle Sam is off the gold basis. Secretary Woodin of the treasury announces it officially.

Much excitement in good old Wall Street. If it continues, George W. Hill can find a permanent job there for his young musicians that sing "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Busy brokers, in five short hours, sold 5,000,000 shares of stock. On the same day, a week ago, they sold only 747,900 shares. Manna in the desert was nothing to that.

STOCKS went up partly because the American dollar, temporarily, went down. President Roosevelt has decided to let Europe's opinion of the dollar take care of itself and to keep in America all our gold—reserve—rabbit's foot.

The President decides that gold, too precious for Americans to own, is also too good to be sent to Europe.

EUROPE shouts gleefully, "America is off the gold basis." Quite true, and it that comforts them, let them take comfort. The late genius, "Tad," used to say, "I'd rather have them say 'There he goes' than 'Don't he look natural?'"

A NEW picture, "Looking Forward," seen in Washington, D. C., and now to be shown all over the country, is one that you should see. Named for President Roosevelt's recently published book, "Looking Forward," with the President's consent, it demonstrates the truth of President Roosevelt's saying that what the world requires today is the hope and courage of youth.

The story, ending happily, as many sad stories of today will end, is that of modern business and depression, a great firm driven to the wall, its employees added to the army of the unemployed because there is no money to pay them.

One of these employees, the part played by Lionel Barrymore, discharged after 40 years of faithful service, grieves not for himself but for the downfall of a great firm. Lionel Barrymore is truly a magnificent actor. His success and that of his brother and sister seem to contradict the scientific theory that "acquired characteristics are not inherited." Their ancestors acquired the art of good acting and they inherit it.

MUSSOLINI suggests that Uncle Sam's foreign debt be paid in goods.

How this country could absorb $10,000,000,000 worth of foreign-made goods just now with so many of our workers idle is not clear. But suggestions from the able Mussolini are always welcome.

By the way, that powerful person is sending 20 airplanes from Rome to Chicago to celebrate the opening of the big fair, a most extremely friendly gesture by a nation that has recently broken, and holds, the world's air speed record.

Mr. McManus, of Detroit, would like you to know that Italy's plane setting the new record of almost 450 miles an hour used American-made spark plugs.

NEVER trust your memory especially concerning matters, dating back to reading of more than 30 years past. This column, quoting one of Moliere's characters who said: "J'ai fais de la prose toute ma vie sans le savoir," "I will have been writing prose all my life without knowing it," located the remark in Moliere's "Tartuffe," whereas it should have been credit to his "Bourgeois Gentilhomme."

This apology is for those that have sent corrections, beginning with the erudite Mrs. Edith E. of New York, and ending, for the present, with the Honorable S. P. Robinson, senator in the Florida legislature.

British Hope For Pardons For Trio

LONDON, April 20.—The Russian ambassador was reported today to have informed the British government that its embargo proclamation has made it difficult for leniency to be shown the imprisoned British engineers in Moscow.

The hope was strong here that sentences imposed on the two Britons for alleged sabotage and espionage activities will be commuted to deportation. In that event, it was expected the embargo on 80 per cent of Russian imports, effective next Wednesday, would be revoked.

On the other hand there was a suggestion that the Soviet republic would hesitate to grant the petition now before its executive committee, requesting the commutation, because of fear that Soviet citizens would interpret such action as a surrender to British intimidation.

TWO SCHEDULED TO DIE APR. 28

Only Intervention of Governor White Can Save Men from Chair

COLUMBUS, April 20.—Only intervention by Governor White will save two men from death in the electric chair April 28.

Loss Court Appeals

The prisoners, Ralph Atterholt and Tony Rotunno, both of Sharon, Pa., lost their appeals to the state supreme court yesterday. They were convicted of killing Scott Vashinder, marshal of Newton Falls, O., in a gun battle the night of July 4, last.

Rotunno, Atterholt and Owen Hunter, the latter of Warren, O., were surprised by Vashinder and a constable during an attempted robbery. The trio escaped and Atterholt, wounded, returned to Sharon. Two weeks later, Hunter was killed by a Warren policeman when he and Rotunno held up a gasoline station there.

Captured the next day, Rotunno confessed participation in the Newton Falls shooting and implicated Atterholt. The latter was arrested in Pennsylvania.

The supreme court refused to review the convictions, which had been affirmed by the court of appeals.

Sheriff Wins Appeal

Former Sheriff Charles G. Emmert of Lucas county won his appeal for a supreme court review of his conviction on a charge of rendering false accounts to the county commissioners. He charged that the jury in his trial was prejudiced by remarks of two court bailiffs.

The supreme court refused to hear the suit of Charles K. Turner of Greenville to compel members of the board of education of that city to pay $12,331. He claimed that amount in interest was lost as a result of an illegal deposit in a Greenville bank.

In another decision, the high tribunal affirmed the appeal court of Lorain county which enjoined Highway Director O. W. Merrell from widening a road leading through the farm of Hattie L. Braun. The owner claimed Merrell sought to widen the road without purchase or condemnation of the necessary land.

The suit of Sol Bordenkircher seeking to reduce the salaries of certain Hardin county officials was dismissed by the supreme court, which held such salaries are figured on a basis of population.

STONE TO SELECT VARSITY MEMBERS

Time Trials Scheduled In Races Today; Visitors' Strength Unknown

The 1933 track and field season for Salem High will be inaugurated Saturday with the invasion of Reilly athletic stadium by athletes of Alliance and Canton McKinley for a triangular competition with thinclads of the Quaker City.

Picks Varsity Today With inclement weather prevailing most of the week, Coach Floyd W. Stone was hoping today or Friday to be able to select athletes who will represent the Red and Black in the meet. Time trials in track events and distance tests in field contests are planned as soon as the weather permits.

Saturday will be Stone's first real chance to watch many of his thinclads in action in a regular meet for many of his varsity candidates are youngsters, inexperienced as far as actual competition is concerned. There are several veterans left over from a year ago but it is on the unknown athletes that much depends this season.

Invasion's Strength Uncertain The strength of the invading squads is a matter of uncertainty for they, too, have been unable to stage regular rehearsals because of rain. Coach Leland Whitacre at Alliance has abandoned the annual class meet in favor of varsity tryouts for all candidates while Coach Ward Young planned to hold his tryouts today and Friday.

Tradition, which has established Salem as one of the state's leaders in track and field competition year after year, demands that the Quakers be favored to win first honors in the meet with no great trouble but the presence on Canton squads of a number of promising athletes makes it appear possible that the meet will be closer than the local backers may think.

Three Lettermen at Canton Canton has but three lettermen, Leo Wood, dashman; Ralph Shipley, quarter-mile, and Maurice Swimmer, also a dashman. This trio won honors in several meets last year. Over in Alliance the Whitacres look fairly strong. William Almer, George O'Brien, Young Jones, Walter Hill, Forrest Galina, Carl Sheehan, George Pugh and Glenn Robins all being available.

Almer is the Aviators' big hope. He won the 100-yard dash tryouts in 10.8, galloped the mile under five minutes and is a good, all-around performer. Pugh heaves the shot around 39 feet, while Jones has tossed the discus more than 100 feet with consistency. Robins looks like one of the district's best high jumpers, clearing 5 feet 9 inches this week.

Teachers to Direct Meet No paid officials will be used in the meet, it being planned by Salem school officials to obtain the aid of ex-high athletes from the three cities to take charge.

Meanwhile, Athletic Director Wilbur Springer is concentrating on the completion of plans for the fourth annual night relay carnival scheduled here Saturday, April 29. About 25 schools and 400 athletes are expected.

Two more entries, Boardman and Steubenville, entered the carnival today.

Sailor Lee Favored To Beat Devore In V. F. W. Fight Show

REVENGE SOUGHT BY CANTON LAD IN FRIDAY CARD

Jimmy Shear to Vie For Honors With Burgess In Semi-Final

Sailor Lee of Sebring is favored to register his second victory over Danny Devore, Canton mauler, when the two clash in the main eight round bout of the Veterans of Foreign Wars boxing show at the vets' hall Friday night.

Put Up Thrilling Fight These youngsters met in the semi-final argument of the V. F. W. post's show last month, putting on such a slambang battle that they were booked for this week's finale. Another thrilling melee is promised by promoters.

Lee showed too much leather for Devore in their first meeting and is regarded as the favorite to win again. The boys slugged it out, toe to toe, in the center of the arena, when they first met and Devore, anxious for a decisive victory to atone for the defeat last month, is all set to put up a real battle.

Records Impressive Devore's record is impressive, the Cantonian having met and defeated some of the district's best. Lee, on the other hand, has collided with such pugilists as Ross Fields, Young Ketchell, Speedy Dado, Louis Carpenter, Jimmy Engle and plans to leave for Los Angeles, Calif., some time in July for a tour of the west.

A substitution, placing Jimmy Shear of Canton in the semi-final, replacing Jackie Coogan, was announced today by Chairman Charles McGurran. Shear is more popular than Coogan and besides being a better drawing card than the latter is also recognized as a classier scrapper.

Opposes Burgess Shear meets Butch Burgess of Sebring in the semi-final which is booked for six rounds.

The main preliminary involves Walter Dickey of Salem and Petie Perroni, Canton. Wilbur West, Salem, meets Kid Edwards of Canton and Joe O'Keefe, Salem, opposes Jimmie Kale, Canton, in other preliminaries.

Ted Lyons Hurls Chicago Club To Shutout Victory

(By Associated Press)
The Chicago White Sox, a club which did not "figure" to go anywhere at all in the American League this year has responded to Owner Lou Comiskey's lavish outlay of cash for new playing talent by assuming a distinctly threatening attitude.

It still is too early to say how far the Sox will go, but the fact remains that so far they have outlived every other major league club and have climbed into second place. It was more or less expected that their stickwork would improve with the acquisition of Al Simmons, Mule Hugg and Jimmy Dykes from the Athletics but no one counted on the Sox getting enough pitching to make the clouting useful.

In six games, the Pale Hose have confounded the critics not only by producing several hurriers who could hold their own and win games, even when the opposition wasn't overpowered. In the opener, Eddie Durham and Joe Heving collaborated in a four-hit game; a couple of days later Paul Gregory and Vic Frazier allowed Detroit only six hits but lost the game; Tuesday Sad Samuel Jones granted seven blows scattered well enough to produce a shutout and yesterday another veteran, Ted Lyons, turned in a three hit masterpiece.

Lyons, making his second start in a comeback campaign after two bad seasons, pitched almost perfect ball and while the Sox could get only seven safeties off Dick Cofman and Sam Gray they turned back the St. Louis Browns 3 to 0. Only six Browns reached first.

In the only other game played yesterday, the Brooklyn Dodgers displayed some more of the smart baseball with which they have been amazing the National League. To take a ten inning decision from the Boston Braves, 2 to 1. The winning run came in on a squeeze play when Al Lopez laid down a neat bunt and brought Tony Cucinello in from third.

DISTRICT LOOP SCHOOLS STAGE MEET SATURDAY

Tri-County Rivals Vie For Honors At East Palestine Field

East Palestine is called into defense of its Tri-County league track and field championship when school members of the sectional circuit clash in their second annual spring-time competition at the fairgrounds, East Palestine, on Saturday.

Competing for the title gained last season by Coach Perry Van Hining's proteges will be thinclads representing Lebanon, Leontonia, Boardman, Sebring, Columbiana, Minerva and Louisville.

Fifty men are busy putting the grounds in shape for the gala track and field carnival. Competition is expected to be keen and many of the records established a year ago may go by the boards in the heat of Saturday's meet.

East Palestine holds clear title to five of the original records and shares another one with Leontonia. Parker of East Palestine and Zack of Leontonia tied for the shot put record with heaves of 40 feet, nine inches last year. East Palestine holds the records for the following events: half mile relay, broad jump, half mile run, 220 yard dash and one mile relay.

The meet will start at 2 p. m. Saturday with the following events on tap:

120 yard high hurdles, pole vault, high jump shot put, and discus. The 100 yard dash will be run at 2:15 p. m. Then in order will follow: mile run, half mile relay, 440 yard dash, 220 yard low hurdles, javelin throw, broad jump, half mile run, 220 yard dash and mile relay.

Cleveland Boxing Moguls to Probe Jones, Jeby Fight

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, April 20.—Branding the fight "the rottenest we've ever seen" members of the Cleveland Boxing commission today instituted a "thorough investigation" into the six-round performance of Ben Jeby, New York middleweight, and Gorilla Jones of Akron, O.

Chair Tossed Into Ring The fighters, twice warned by Referee Fred Block that "you'll have to fight," crouched with their hands in their corners for several minutes as police riot squads, quelled an aroused audience of 7,587 fans who loudly shouted "take."

A chair was thrown to the center of the ring but hit no one after Referee Block ruled the fight "no contest."

Public hall guards formed a cordon around the ringside and held off pushing, screaming patrons as five squads of police battled their way to the ringside and hustled the fighters to their dressing rooms. About 500 of the spectators made an unsuccessful attempt to get their money back.

The commission, however, ordered paid up the share of the $13,350 gate that was to have gone to the fighters and promoter Al Palge. Councilman Joseph A. Arti said he would introduce a resolution in city council to withhold the fighters' money and donate it to charity.

Sutphin Bewildered Al Sutphin, boxing commission chairman, declared he "couldn't understand why a fighter like Jones, who hits straight and hard should suddenly turn up as a roundhouse puncher."

Anthony Hughes, a commission member, charged "both fighters pulled their punches" and member Leo Ratty said "there will be no whitewash."

Jeby, recognized as world middleweight champion by the New York Boxing commission, and Jones, the National Boxing association's American titleholder, circled warily, feinting and clinching without exchanging more than an occasional clean blow for the first two rounds.

Though Block warned them to "fight," they continued their tactics through two more rounds despite an uproar from the crowd.

Second Warning Unheeded A second warning at the end of the fourth sent the fighters dancing into the fifth round in apparently serious purpose. They exchanged glancing blows and fell into several generous clinches.

At the end of that round, the commission conferred and agreed to give the fighters "one more chance." Block again warned both men, who, he said, replied "all right."

When no more action developed in the sixth than had been apparent in the first five Block declared the fight "no contest." The near riot resulted.

taking the nation off the gold standard in world trade.

The authority was viewed as placing in Mr. Roosevelt's hands the useful weapon he wants in the fast approaching economic negotiations with foreign nations to bring about a stabilization of world currency on a revised gold standard.

As yesterday's rising stock and commodity prices were noted in congressional circles, there appeared to be a general wave of support in both the domestic and international aspects of the monetary problem.

Leaders Confident

Leaders seemed confident the proposed power for the President would be granted by congress.

The Thomas bill was submitted to the President at the white house last night in a conference attended by Secretary Woodin, Undersecretaries Phillips and Moley of the state department, Director Douglas of the budget, Chairman Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee and Senator Byrnes of South Carolina. Some details were left to be worked out but in general it was understood to have the President's full approval.

Another administration attack on deflationary influences was in full swing today at the treasury where the governors of the federal reserve banks were continuing their conference on means of re-opening the thousands of closed banks in the country.

Woodin told newsmen that the President's renewed embargo on gold had been placed with the idea of increasing commodity prices. He added that the governors of the reserve banks had brought word to him of signs of improved business all over the country and that the rise in the price of commodities had brought real hope to farming communities.

Meets Foreign Diplomats

Mr. Roosevelt begins his conversations with foreign diplomats late this week with the arrival of Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain.

By his strategy in withdrawing support of the American dollar in foreign exchanges, the President has won a position whereby the United States has the same basis in the world money marts as Great Britain and the other powers which have gone off the gold standard.

He also has made it easier for payments of the war debts through the lowered price of the American dollar. The silver alternative proposed in the Thomas bill gives further opportunity for the debtors to meet their payments.

Buy Brewing Stock

CLEVELAND, April 20.—Syndicate of Cleveland and Dayton business men have completed negotiations or the purchase of the corporate stock of the Miami Valley Brewing company at Dayton, according to Henry A. Beckerman, their attorney. Edward Rowe, manager of the concern, is a member of the group. Installation of new equipment and a capacity of 200,000 barrels of beer is planned.

Plan World Trip

DAYTON, April 20.—Reported planning another world flight, Wiley Post left here for Okizoma City in his plane, "Winnie Mae," in which he and Harold Gatty set a globe-circling record. At Wright field it was said Post may use an "automatic pilot," a gyroscopic device which holds the plane on its course without the pilot having to man the controls.

Auditors O. K. Bill

COLUMBUS, April 20.—A bill proposing cancellation of future payments on special highway assessments was endorsed in principle by the executive and legislative committees of the Ohio County Auditors' association. The state, under the proposal, would assume the payments, using its share of gasoline tax receipts.

"The Great Jasper," Starring Richard Dix, Coming to State

THE record for consistent popularity of Richard Dix is surpassed by no other star. In these hectic days when the maximum life of a star is listed at about five years, Dix's unceasing popularity for over a decade is something to think about admiringly. He and Richard Barthelmess seem to have places of their own in the land of movies that no other is capable of replacing.

Dix Plays Great Lover

Dix has portrayed many different characters and in his current release, "The Great Jasper" coming to the State theater Friday, he acts the role of an irresponsible and altogether irresistible lover.

Dix is supported by that comedienne of the screen who steals so many scenes from stars of great note—Edna May Oliver—and the new German sensation—Wera Engels, along with Florence Eldridge, who in private life is Mrs. Fredric March, also portray important roles.

Jenny Does Not Understand

Perhaps nowhere in the world is there a woman who understands the love of a faithless husband. Such a man was the Great Jasper who couldn't resist the charms of the many women he met and yet never ceased loving his wife—his "Jenny girl" who, as he said, was his right hand. But the time came when his "right hand" would no longer stand the trials and troubles he caused her.

Jenny stood for only stern goodness and rigid honor and so she left him. Then on his death bed Jasper knew he could be true to his wife only after death even though she was the only woman he had never forgotten.

"The Great Jasper" provides Dix a new type of role—a character study requiring great artistry to interpret and it is said this scrappy two-fister gives one of his greatest portrayals as Jasper of the wicked wink and open heart.

THAT stately, dark sophistication of the screen—Kay Francis—and the Irish George Brent who flashed in the limelight only one year ago as the author in "The Rich Are Always With Us", and who has since played in pictures with the best known its own level on such a basis naturally would be expected to advance rather than to decline.

But the belief that the United States might seek to extricate itself from its economic morass through reducing the purchasing power of the dollar has been sufficient to prompt selling of dollars by foreigners with balances in New York, and the purchase of other currencies, as well as selling of dollars by foreign exchange speculators.

It is this abnormal pressure against the dollar, exchange experts explain, which has decreased its level in relation to other currencies. Inflation has become such a contentious word that a number of financial authorities have sought to substitute other words for it, such as "anti-deflation." Inflation is commonly defined as an increase in the circulating medium, meaning either currency or bank credit in the form of checks, or both, with a consequent rise in prices.

Glenda Farrell In Cast

They are capably supported in this interesting film by Glenda Farrell and Allen Jenkins who form a most comic duo.

No more unusual start for a screen romance could be imagined than the occasion that brings Brent and Miss Francis together in this story. Brent is a private detective employed by Kay's elderly banker husband to spy upon his wife during a trip to Havana which she insists on taking alone. No hero has ever been placed in a more unheroic situation than the one in which Brent finds himself as he dutifully dispatches reports to his employer about a woman with whom he is falling rapidly in love and who unsuspectingly trusts him.

Brent Always Likable

It seems no matter what role this Irish chap portrays he wins the sympathy of his audiences. There is something about the staid young fellow that leaves the impression that he is unable to do anything as mean as he actually does in the screen.

Miss Francis wears 23 changes of costumes in this picture. The story is snappy and leads the spectator in a series of madcap adventures that prove highly interesting.
